Check out some pictures from Cast A 2014's Arrival Day. A new semester has begun!

Top left, clockwise: Members of Cast A 2014 are welcomed by other students and staff members. Road staff members Nicole Magloire ('11B, United States) and Yolanda Ketel ('12A, The Netherlands), greet each other on Arrival Day. Collin Shepherd ('12B, United States) welcomes Rachel Gicho ('14A, Kenya). More students arrive to smiling faces in Denver, Colorado. Maria Alvarez Cardenas ('13B, Mexico) joins Up with People (UWP) for her second semester. Beyah Rasool ('13A, United States) greets a student at the airport. Two students from Asia are excited to begin their UWP journey.

UP WITH PEOPLE: THE ORIGINAL WORLD WIDE WEB

Our program brings people together. Read about two students' journeys to become part of the Up with People family.

The road to Up with People (UWP) is not always an easy one. Young adults must go through a lengthy application and interview process, raise the program fee, and pack their lives into a suitcase. And, if you are representing a country other than the United States, obtaining visas and other necessary paperwork can delay the process. When the students finally arrive in Denver, Colorado, they feel a wide range of emotions ranging from excitement to anxiety.

UWP recently interviewed two study abroad students about their experience so far: Michael from the United States and Pone from Sweden. They explained how they came to be a part of Cast A 2014 and members of UWP's extensive world wide web.

MICHAEL

MICHAEL'S STORY

I heard about UWP from my friend Kinsey Scholl ('12A); no relation. Previously, I was working at AmeriCorps. Kinsey would always talk about UWP with such enthusiasm and excitement. I love traveling and being exposed to new cultures. Applying for UWP felt natural.

The application was very smooth and fast compared to other programs I have applied to in the past. Brad Good ('95A), was my admissions counselor. I enjoyed working with him. My interview with Brad was nerve-wracking, just like any other type of interview. I found out that I had been accepted into UWP one morning while working at AmeriCorps. I literally jumped out of my chair and screamed. My co-workers even threw me a congratulatory party.

I was very fortunate with regards to the fundraising process. My parents said if enrolled in UWP's study abroad program, they would pay for my tuition.

When it came time to pack for UWP, I asked Kinsey to give me advice about what to bring and what not to bring.

However, while on my way to join Cast A 2014, I spent some time in India during the holiday season and ended up leaving some non-essential items there. Now, I have a lot of room in my suitcase!

The first people I met upon my arrival to Denver were my aunt and uncle. I arrived early and stayed with them until it was time to begin my UWP journey.

Now that I am officially a member of UWP's Cast A 2014, I am excited about traveling and experiencing other countries' cultures. I am really nervous about performing on stage—especially if I have to sing a solo! I am hoping that UWP will help me come out of my shell, make a lot of new friends, and overcome my stage fright.

PONE'S STORY

I learned about UWP in July 2012. I was working in Norway and met Christina Heggstad ('06A). She believed that I was the right type of person to travel in UWP. She said she had a Golden Passport to give me and that it would help with my tuition. I immediately went home and researched UWP. I did not know something like this program existed. I am very passionate about UWP's main components: traveling, performing, and impacting communities around the world. I applied to be a part of Cast A 2014 in early 2013. It was not an easy process for me. I felt that the application was challenging. I applied when I was in Sweden and Christina (Heggstad) was in Norway so she could not help me with the application process.*

I found out that I was accepted into the program in February

2013. I started to fundraise the tuition fees right away. I put up signs offering help to my neighbors. I could babysit children or assist the elderly with getting their groceries or walking their pets. Fundraising is difficult in Sweden because we do not have the same type of culture of giving as the United States. No one called. In August 2013, I moved to Norway to work as a waitress. In Norway, the salaries are usually doubled when compared to Sweden. I earned $26 USD/hour in Norway compared to $12 USD/hour in Sweden. I lived on Christina's floor and then lived with some co-workers from the restaurant so that I could save extra money for UWP. It was a lot of hard work to get here but I am so glad that I am here. I know it will be such a rewarding experience.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Larry Rodeck ('72B) and Sandra (Soest) Rodeck ('73B) met in Italy with Up with People. Now, it is their children's turn to travel.

Last December, Up with People (UWP) took a group of guests to Rome to participate in Viva Roma, an extension program. Larry Rodeck ('72B) and Sandra (Soest) Rodeck ('73B) were two of the alumni who participated. Larry and Sandra have a special place in their hearts for Italy: it is where they met as students in UWP in 1973. Forty years later, married with three children, they joined UWP again for Viva Roma.

Larry and Sandra met in Rimini, Italy, shortly after their casts arrived in the country. "We met either walking to our host families or while paddle boating," said Sandra.

1973 was a great year full of UWP historical highlights including two sold-out shows in the famed Carnegie Hall in New York City. Of course, a trip to Rome was always exciting and full of many memorable experiences.

Now that UWP is entering its 49th year, Larry and Sandra are still very much connected to the organization; especially through their children, Sara ('13B) and Cameron ('14A). Sara is a second-semester student in the current UWP cast and

The Viva Roma Rodeck family pose in front of the Colosseum in Italy.

Cameron joins his sister as a first-time cast member. "Our family has been involved with UWP since 1965. Quite a few stories have been shared around the dinner table," said Sandra. "Both Cameron and Sara are excited to meet people and build friendships all over the world." Sandra also explained that UWP will be an unparalleled experiential learning opportunity for both children: a perfect gap-year for Sara and a mid-career opportunity for Cameron.

When asked if they felt UWP was still relevant in today's world, the Rodecks gave a resounding 'yes.' "People are similar around the world," said Sandra. "Wonderful, lifelong friends are better peacemakers than most politicians! UWP offers young adults an extraordinary and outstanding opportunity to discover themselves and their place on the planet."

Larry, Sandra, and Sara Rodeck enjoy their last night together in Rome.

I WANT TO BRING UP WITH PEOPLE TO MY CITY. NOW WHAT?

Up with People wants to bring a cast to your city. You can help!

Up with People (UWP) does amazing work in communities all over the world. The positive, lasting impact that our program has on people young and old continues to demonstrate our relevancy in today's world. It is no surprise that many alumni and friends of our program want to bring a future cast to their cities. UWP looks for financial sponsors to bring casts to communities around the world. Sponsorships differ depending on each individual market. Sponsorship goals can vary based on city size, region, available venues, and other factors. Plan ahead! UWP schedules tours 12 to 18 months in advance. UWP's tour management team works with your local network and business community to ensure sponsorship funding is available. Having warm introductions is key!

One of Cast A 2014's United States tour cities—Des Moines, Iowa—was added to the tour primarily due to the work of dedicated alumni in that city, particularly Janelle (Feddersen) Holmes ('84A). Janelle worked with Chelsey Panchot, UWP's U.S. Sales and Tour Manager. Together, they presented sponsorship proposals to various business leaders and community organizations. "One thing I learned was that when potential sponsors say no to sponsoring UWP, they are not saying no to me or the organization," said Janelle. "There is nothing about UWP that any person or organization can object to. Sometimes, it just does not work out." Janelle also suggested that you should rely on your local alumni network. "This will only help broaden your contacts and make bringing a future UWP cast to your city that much easier." Getting together with the alumni and UWP supporters in your city is essential to the success of the visit. We hope to experience your community soon!

moments of inspiration

"My host family in Mexico said that they were grateful to the cast for changing their impression of young people. They also thanked me for changing their impression of Americans. We are ambassadors of our communities and countries. Blanton Belk, UWP's founder, said it best: "I saw the ability of young people to do what governments had failed to do—to walk across borders, see beyond race, and build bridges of understanding between people." Paul Conzemius ('08A, United States) "I was on stage performing the UWP song "Stand Up Now" which encourages students to help those who are bullied. In the fourth row, there was a young boy—about nine years old—who was encouraging his parents and friends to stand up. Then, he stood on his chair and told the high school-aged students to stand up too, waving his hands in the air as if he was pulling them up himself. It was empowering that our message was giving this young student such confidence."

Miguel Samaniego ('08B, United States)

"While in Mexico, Cast B 2013 worked at a rehabilitation center for people with drug addictions. It was an especially impactful community service activity for our two local student translators who had never been there. They decided to take action after the cast left the city. They rallied fellow students to do food drives for the center, and spend time with the people there every week. This is one of the many examples of how UWP leaves a lasting impact wherever we go."

Sanne Meert ('12A, Belgium)

UP WITH PEOPLE STAFF PROFILE

CARLOS GUTIERREZ ('81A)

What is your role with Up with People (UWP)?

I am the new Manager of Viva la Gente—UWP in Mexico.

What was your most memorable moment while on tour as a student?

I enjoyed performing in Super Bowl XVI in Pontiac, Michigan in 1982. There were 500 of us in one twelve-minute show. And we were on television!

What is your favorite UWP song?

I have three favorite songs. I like "Song of Peace" because I believe that UWP delivers a great message of hope and peace to people around the world. I like "Where the Roads Come Together" because life has taught me that even if two people go their separate ways, they will find a way to reconnect. My third favorite song is "What Color is God's Skin?" I am a true believer that it does not matter where you were raised or where you grew up. We are all the same.

What was your most memorable tour city?

My most memorable tour city was Hot Springs, Arkansas. I was a promotional representative in that city. I learned so much. I loved working in that city because the UWP promotional staff in that city provided a lot of international flavor. It was the first time that I worked with people from so many different countries.

If you could plan an UWP tour to anywhere in the world, where would you go?

I would go to Africa. I had planned a vacation there with my family in February 2014 until I found out that I was hired by UWP. Instead, I will be in Denver, Colorado.

If you travelled in UWP for another six months, what are the five items that you could not live without?

I could not live without my actual suitcase and traditional gifts from Mexico for my host families. I would also bring my credit card and that is it. I can buy whatever else I may need.

What is the most rewarding part of your job?

I appreciate being able to give back to the organization which provided me with such great knowledge and experiences. After traveling in UWP as a student, I had many job interviews. Most of the time, the person interviewing me asked me more questions about my time with UWP than about the job for which I was applying! He or she could not believe that I had had this experience. I have also served on the UWP International Alumni Association Board of Governors in the past. I have been with UWP during many challenging times. Now, I am privileged to be with UWP as we celebrate our 50th anniversary.

What is one thing you would do differently?

I do not think I would do anything differently. I maximized my experience.

UP WITH PEOPLE BRINGS MESSAGE OF HOPE TO MEXICO

Cast B 2013 provides youth in Mexico with a positive message.

Last semester, three weeks before the cast’s arrival to Ciudad Obregon in Mexico, the city was devastated by Hurricane Manuel. Though most of their town was under water and the future, especially that of its youth, seemed desolate, the people of Ciudad Obregon were still determined to bring Up with People (UWP) to their city.

The woman responsible for bringing Cast B 2013 to Ciudad Obregon was Irma Arana. She is also the founder of the city’s Fine Arts Society. The fine arts are not seen as a cultural priority in Mexico and, considering the recent natural disaster, the people were apprehensive to attend Cast B 2013’s performance of ‘Voices.’ However, Irma saw the positive impact that the cast had on her city in just a few short days; particularly on the youth. She urged people to attend the show. Prior to the start of one of UWP’s two sold out shows, Irma spoke to the audience: “When children play with instruments, they do not play with guns. When children are sensitive to the fine arts, they do no evil. Listen to UWP and hear their message.”

The response was like nothing Irma had ever seen before. People were on their feet, dancing, singing, clapping, and believing in the optimism in UWP’s message. Most of the audience members were youth, hungry for positive influences. Cast B 2013 gave them the hope they needed and a reason to look towards the future.

IMPACT UP WITH PEOPLE TODAY BY GIVING ONCE PER MONTH

Monthly gifts, when added up, can make a big difference.

Up with People (UWP) exists today to spark people into action in meeting the needs of their communities, countries, and the world while building bridges of understanding as a foundation for world peace. We want to encourage others to make an impact... to BE the impact. A great way to impact UWP is by making a gift through our monthly giving program, IMPACT. These monthly gifts—even just $10 a month—have a big effect on UWP. Some of the benefits to giving monthly to UWP include:

- Once you set up a monthly giving option, you are set! There is only one step.
- Adjusting your monthly gift is easy. To increase your monthly gift, send an email to info@upwithpeople.org and let us know the new amount.
- You can give to either the UWP Fund or the Global Scholarship Fund or both. It is your choice!

Giving one time per month may seem small but when you combine your gifts with those of other friends and alumni of our program, you are helping to make a huge difference.

Several UWP alumni choose to impact the organization through IMPACT. One alumnus is Grant Axton ('87A). "I give to UWP through the monthly IMPACT club because it is easy to set up, the monthly gift is small enough not to make a major difference to my bank account, and at the end of the year, I have made a huge difference," said Grant. "As an alumnus, I

"As an alumnus, I want to help support UWP. For me, this is the easiest way."

(Grant Axton, '87A)

How did you hear about our program?

I was working for the Office of International Education at Carroll University in Wisconsin. After having a conversation about different options for study abroad programs with my advisor, I decided that I would travel with Up with People (UWP) because the program offers so many great activities while traveling to different countries.

You are a global ambassador for your country: Vietnam. What aspects of your culture are you hoping to share with your cast mates and the world?

I want to Cast A 2014 to know about Vietnamese cuisine, Vietnamese scenery, significant holidays, and common traits of Vietnamese people.

What are you most excited or nervous about?

I am most excited about making new friends and getting to know cultures from different parts of the world. The only thing I am concerned about is if I will be able to open up myself enough to fully experience this great opportunity.

What has your host family experience been like thus far?

My host family experience has been pretty awesome so far. I have really caring host parents. Another student is also staying with us. She (Laura) is the happiest person ever! We talk, we care, we share, and we joke.

Do you have any goals you are hoping to accomplish as a member of Cast A 2014?

I am hoping to make and maintain all good relationships that I have made during the experience. I also want to put together a photography and video project that displays all of the places I traveled. Finally, I really looking forward to learning as much as I can about new cuisines and languages.

Doan and Laura ('13B), who is also traveling with Cast A 2014, spent their first host family day in the mountains.
